FOREWORD

As modern civilization moves forward, as man continues to look for new frontiers, the first great frontier of our country is almost forgotten. The Indian, once sole inhabitant of the Western Hemisphere, is now only history. It is our hope, however, that by presenting part of the Indian culture and civilization their history will not be lost.

DEDICATION

CLARKE ROCKWELL

MARVYN JAFFE

We, the Class of 1963, dedicate the SACHEM to Mr. Clarke Rockwell and Mr. Marvyn Jaffe, the assistant principals at North Haven High School. With words of advice and encouragement, they have played a part in our experiences that should not be unnoticed. We must recognize the efforts of these two men. We must step back and look over any personal grievances; we must step back and see them as educators who have dedicated their lives to education. With similar sincerity, we dedicate this book, the 1963 SACHEM, to them.

IN APPRECIATION

JOYCE FONTAINE

Towards the aim of publishing the 1963 SACHEM, Miss Fontaine and Mr. Perrone have displayed unusual and continuous interest and patience. Without such an influence, the yearbook would have suffered greatly. It would be impossible to calculate the amount of time that has been spent to produce this yearbook, but certainly, that time would have been much greater if Miss Fontaine and Mr. Perrone had not been here. Thus, it is in appreciation of everything they have given us that the SACHEM offers its warmest thanks.

"They crossed the gray river thousands abreast,
They rode in infinite times to the west,
Tide upon tide of strange fury and foam
Spirits and wraiths the blue was their home,
The sky was their goal where the star-flags were furled
And on past those far golden splendors they whirled."

SUPERINTENDENT'S MESSAGE

DR. CHARLES T. ST. CLAIR
Superintendent of Schools

Congratulations to the Class of 1963!

You have achieved a goal towards which you have been working since you entered the public school system as kindergarteners thirteen years ago. Graduation must have seemed years in the future then, but now it is upon you, and you are about to leave North Haven High School.

This is a time when you look back upon your school life from a new point of view. No doubt there have been ups and downs, times of elation at success and progress, times of sadness at having done less than one's best. But the total experience has been positive, and you will remember the good things over the passing years.

But Commencement is a time for looking ahead to the beginning of a new phase of your life, one which offers greater freedom and imposes great responsibility. You have much to offer to our society, and a world filled with tension and conflict needs your best efforts. We are confident that your accomplishments will reflect honor upon your school.

PRINCIPAL'S MESSAGE

Congratulations to the Class of 1963. Graduation marks a significant milestone for each of you. With commencement comes the end of many pleasant associations that have been built during your years at North Haven High School. At the same time, commencement should be the beginning of a full and productive life reflecting the skills and attitudes which you developed while in school.

The true value of formal education is measured in terms of the extent to which it creates a desire for continued learning and the extent to which it gives to its students the skills necessary to pursue this quest for knowledge. The unparalleled growth in all areas of knowledge makes it imperative that education be a life-long commitment if we are to meet the challenges which confront us. We are confident that you have developed this desire to continue your commitment to education.

Your class has made many noteworthy contributions to the academic and extra-curricular programs of North Haven High School. Students for many years to come will benefit by the positive influences of this class on the traditions of the school.

We will follow your progress with a great deal of interest. We are sure that you will continue to set for yourselves in your future endeavors, the same high standards you proved capable of achieving while at North Haven High School. The faculty joins me in wishing you success in the future.

ENGLISH

In pursuing its goal of teaching students to read and write more effectively, the English Department has found itself rebuilding and experimenting in 1962-63. In connection with a system-wide curriculum revision, the members of the department have revised virtually every phase of the high school course of study. They have diversified the books available for classroom study; now, though there are certain books which are required reading for all students, teachers may choose from a wide range of supplementary readings those books which best suit the ability and interests of their classes. There has been considerable experimentation by individual teachers, by English teachers working in teams with social studies teachers, and by English teachers working in teams with other English teachers.

FOREIGN LANGUAGES

The Language Department which is always exuberant and enthusiastic is inordinately so this year due to the recent installation of a Language Laboratory equipped with 30 booths. Each class meets in the laboratory one period a week to use the tapes which accompany the textbooks or to do innumerable things which help to develop one's linguistic skills.

The curriculum offers extensive reading of Molière, Caesar, and Benito Pérezgaldos, in addition to the usual study of grammar, vocabulary, and diction.

MATHEMATICS

The Mathematics Department now offers a completely modern mathematics program in all its elective courses. The materials of the School Mathematics Study Group, which represents the most extensive and widely accepted national effort to modernize the high school mathematics curriculum, have been incorporated in their entirety into our present course of study.

Students are assigned to mathematics classes on the basis of their needs, interests, and ability. These classes range from terminal courses — for students who need a minimum of mathematics or find mathematics difficult to learn to advanced mathematics such as matrix algebra and analytic geometry — for students with special interest and capability in mathematics.

SOCIAL STUDIES

In attempting to develop the student in the understanding of history, past, present and future, the social studies department offers courses in World History, United States History and Problems of Democracy. In the planning stages is an Advanced Placement Program and a seminar program dealing with every major field in the realm of history.

Extra-curricular activities are used to promote further the department's objectives. Students participate in such clubs as the United Nations club, the Student Forum and the Debate club.

SCIENCE

The High School Science Department worked long and hard last year in making suggestions for improving the science facilities at the school. The fruits of their labor have come to pass with the renovation of rooms 37, 38, and 42. These science classrooms are now equipped with lab stations which include water, gas and electrical outlets. These stations will enable the students to carry on more laboratory investigations, and also provide broader experiences in the science course they are studying.

In addition, to make the rest of these new facilities, the class scheduling of Biology II, Chemistry and Physics now includes a weekly one-hour laboratory class.

BUSINESS

The major objectives of the Business Education program is twofold. First, it attempts to train students in vocational office skills to equip them either for immediate employment or continued work on the college level in related areas leading to secretarial, managerial, accounting, teaching, and other related professions. Secondly, considerable attempts have been made in the area of the college-bound student by providing him with such courses that will provide basic tools for studying and learning while at college.

Over the years the department has added greatly to its totally elective program so as to provide a suitable selection of subjects by all levels of students.

INDUSTRIAL ARTS

Industrial Arts is that part of a total education program which is concerned with the development of a practical understanding and appreciation of today's industrial and technical society.

Opportunities for learning are provided through experiences in planning, using tools and materials, performing processes in the production of useful articles, servicing industrial products, and experimenting in activities related to the science of industrial and technical problems of the world today.

The areas of engineering drawing, graphic arts, general metals, general woods, and electronics each make their contributions toward these goals through study and actual application in our shop laboratories.

ART

The aims of the Art Department are threefold. One, to provide adequate preparation for those who wish to go on to art school, two, to acquaint all with satisfying pursuits for leisure time, and three, to instill in students an appreciation for the world's art heritage, both past and present.

Art I introduces the student briefly to the many areas included in commercial art and fine art. Art II takes a few of these areas and delves more deeply into them, giving the students more opportunity for pursuit of chosen areas. Art III emphasizes a free choice of projects under the direction of the teacher and also an opportunity to prepare a portfolio for art school application.

MUSIC

MR. ALEX WINSO

MR. DONALD PARSONS

This year has seen the introduction of Music Arts I course as an elective subject. The course deals with history and appreciation of music as well as rudiments of theory and music skills.

A wide variety of performing groups features the North Haven High School musical scene. In addition to a 100-piece Concert Band, the instrumental program includes a German Band, a Dance Band, and a Marching Band which performs at football games and parades. The choral program includes an 80-voice Chorus, a smaller Concert Choir, and a newly-formed Boys' Glee Club.

Musical groups of the school participate in a Christmas program, Elementary School concerts, a Spring Music Festival, and other concerts. Qualified students participate and compete in state-wide musical events. The department lends support to dramatic productions.

"And — if he doesn't take HIS band out of MY room . . ."

HOME ECONOMICS

Courses in the Home Economics Department are offered on an elective basis to all girls in grades ten through twelve. Classes have been recently organized to provide opportunity to those girls whose schedules have made previous course selections in Home Economics impossible.

The department includes instruction in the areas of Child Development, Consumer Education, Foods and Nutrition, Family Relations, Clothing and Textiles, Home Planning and Care of the Sick.

The curriculum enables girls to pursue their present interests and develop abilities as they prepare for future careers in nursing, college, business and home-making.

PHYSICAL EDUCATION

Contrary to an all-too-common misconception, physical education is not designed as a recess or free play period; rather it is education through physical activity directed toward definite desirable outcomes.

Our program is gradually achieving one of its long sought after objectives, that of progression of activities. This year, for the first time, all seniors are scheduled homogeneously on Friday, thereby, permitting them to receive instruction in activities suited to their particular age and grade levels. These activities would include those with carry-over value, such as archery, tennis, and badminton.

This year the program will reap the benefits of a new facility which has been made available for class use. The old gym stage has been converted into a teaching station for apparatus and gymnastic activities as well as corrective exercise work.

GUIDANCE

Again this year, North Haven High School students and especially seniors, made extensive use of the guidance services available to them. Heading the list of services provided by the school counselors were personal, educational and vocational counseling.

The counselors also worked closely with administrators, teachers, parents and psychological service personnel to meet the individual needs of all students. Other guidance services rendered included the coordination of various college, career and military service conferences; collaboration with the Connecticut State Employment Service and local employers in providing occupational and vocational information and guidance, as well as part- and full-time job placement. Assisting students in selecting colleges and other post-high school training, administering local and national testing programs, and providing guidance in course selection were other important aspects of the Guidance program.

LIBRARY

Since the function of the library is to serve, it is in constant use, from 7:45 A.M. to 4:00 P.M. With our collection of books and periodicals, the attempt is made to supply the supplementary reference needs of the school. The book collection, numbering about eight thousand volumes, contains a number of sets of reference books, numerous individual reference books, many books in the various categories, from fiction to non-fiction, and periodical subscriptions, numbering about seventy.

OF MAROON AND WHITE

It is 1963 — the end of a year we had all been working toward, anticipating and subconsciously, perhaps fearing, for now we are no longer students of North Haven High School, but students of the world, bound for college, business and our endeavored futures. With our departure we will look back on our high school years with kind thanks and many fond memories.

Junior Class Party

We will remember the year 1960-1961, when, as sophomores, advised by Mrs. Lichtenstein and Mr. Iacobellis we began our senior high school years. For many of us, being at the high school was not a new thing, for we had been here since the seventh grade. But, for a number of us it was a new thing because North Haven had, for the first time, accepted tuition students from North Branford. As soon as we became organized and had realized our new position and responsibilities as high school students, we set forth and started our plans for the year.

Our sophomore year elections resulted in the election of Bill Engster, President; Barbara Olson, Vice-President; Mary Mancini, Secretary and Barbara Pfnausch, Treasurer. Now, with election out of the way, we made our plans for Sophomore Week, which few of us will ever forget. We will remember the day we all dressed as farmers and looked amazingly at home in our costumes. Aside from the fun provided by our week of nonsense, there was a practical side also.

Our treasury was expanded considerably by the money earned from goodies baked by some of our more domestic, female classmates. Bringing to a close "our" week was the successful and enjoyable class dance, "Pony Time."

At year's end we had our first taste of the privilege which was to be ours the next year: the class rings. Fat fingers, short fingers, long and thin fingers alike were measured and we left school for the summer expecting our rings to be waiting for us when we returned.

They weren't; but we didn't have too long to wait. Panikoff comes through again! Now we were really and officially juniors. And, now that we were juniors we needed officers and with our advisors', Mrs. Roberts and Mr. Baillargeon, help we elected Ken Gould as President; Barbara Olson, Vice-President; Mary Mancini, secretary and Judy Brukle, Treasurer.

With the spring came our first prom. We called it "Wonderland by Night" and to most of us, it was. Our classmates Bruce Anton and Kathy Newman became royalty, if only for an evening.

As the class of 1962 graduated, many members of our class participated in the ceremony as Honor Guard and usherettes. Those of us fortunate enough to witness this graduation watched in awe — and anticipation.

Once again we prepared to leave school for another summer; but — not before we finally stepped out onto that narrow path of cement we had been eyeing for so many years. Next year we would be seniors!

Junior Prom — "Wonderland By Night"

Senior Class Play

Well, we came back; back to our final year, back to Mrs. Roberts and Mr. Samberg, our advisors, and back to our long awaited senior privilege — the courtyard. Back to enjoy our last year with us came Miss Suwartini Karmono of Semarang Jave, Indonesia, our foreign exchange student. Tongue-tied as we were, we just called her Sussy. In no time at all, pint-sized, pigtailed Sussy became Americanized and a few of us, "Indonesianized."

Our senior class officers, John Copeland, President; Larry Davis, Vice-President; Sue McBee, Secretary and Judy Burkle, Treasurer had a big job ahead of them. They had to organize our final year at North Haven and as we look back now, they did a good job of it.

First of our major activities was the traditional senior class play. We chose to put on "You Can't Take It With You", a laugh-filled, fun-packed comedy to which Micky O'Brien, John Hanisch, Gael Gibney and Penny Odell, the leads, did justice. Its two-night stand was not only successful, but hilarious.

And our class did not lack in excellent representatives for the various state-wide competitive activities. Joan Rousseau was not only a winner in Allstate Band competition but was chosen as recipient for the D.A.R. award. Penny Odell, Rae Newcomb and Elena Williams, three of our better female vocalists gained honors in Allstate Chorus. Bill Engster was chosen to represent North Haven at Nutmeg Boys' State and Janet Chapman at Laurel Girls' State.

Early in the year we began to think about graduation. With the fitting of caps and gowns came the choosing of the various committees in charge of graduation proceedings. In charge of the Teachers' Reception were Carole DeLorenzo and Marianne Dill; of the Class Gift, Roberta Barbash and Pat Kelly; of the Class Motto, Kathy King and Sue McBee; Parents' Reception, Jo Tancreti and Bonnie Baker; Awards Night, Linda Lassen and June Comer and of Commencement, Sue Petrillo and Joan Leibiger.

Our Senior Prom could not have more wonderful. Not only were the decorations lovely, but we all sensed that this was our last, big social event at North Haven High. When June and the yearbooks rolled around we realized, finally, the hard work and great efforts of our Sachem co-editors. Marcia Raskin and Rick Coward both deserve our greatest thanks and appreciation.

Now we personally know the thrills, the excitement, and the memories provoked by graduation. Our working, our waiting and our anticipating have been well rewarded. We are no longer students of North Haven High School, but we can never repay it nor will we ever forget the knowledge, the friendship, and the fine memories we have gained there. We the class of 1963, leave North Haven High with new expectations, old memories, and undying thanks.

Graduation!
